From Obs: "Was able to spot a deep slab avalanche from Gallatin peak, slab was at the headwaters of S Fork Hellroaring (N aspect @ 9800) Hard to tell when this released as it was a few miles away, I would estimate the crown being around 10 feet. Observed a small storm slab on a north aspect as well (1-2 foot crown). Also saw a few dozen wet slides that released earlier this week, some tearing all the way to the ground."
